

HPB's Esoteric Instructions with Michael Gomes

The ES instructions of HPB

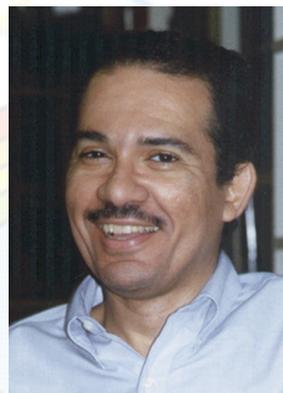

At the end of her life H.P. Blavatsky wrote a series of Instructions for the students of her newly formed Esoteric School. Michael Gomes, editor of a new edition of these Instructions, will provide a guided tour through this material, illuminating its ancient antecedents and historical influence. These Instructions mark Mme. Blavatsky's last effort as part of the centennial cycle to form a nucleus that could work through the Theosophical Society for the benefit of humanity. What relevance do these teachings have for us today?

This series will comprise a number of segments, including a retreat session, which will allow students to interact with the material. HPB's theories on colour, number and sound, the nature of mantras, her esoteric human classification, and the function of after-death and other states as given in these instructions and in Tibetan Buddhism will be among some of the teachings covered. There will also be supplemental sessions that will explore current understanding of colour theory.
